

Core 320/833: Understanding & Working with Children & Youth Who Have Been Sexually Exploited January 2019 to June 2019

As the number of sexually exploited/trafficked children, youth and adults in our society continually increases, it is important to ensure that our social, educational, health and justice systems have the knowledge and skills needed to respond to this target population. As the long-term goal of the Manitoba Provincial Strategy “Tracia’s Trust” is to abolish sexual exploitation, appropriate training for our service systems, as well as public awareness, is critical to this goal’s accomplishment. Increased knowledge and skill in people working with child, youth and adults affected by sexual exploitation/trafficking will increase our success in intervening with those at risk, or with supporting those who are exiting/transitioning away from the sex trade.

This five-day workshop (for Winnipeg sessions) has been divided into two consecutive and related parts. For rural sessions, the training is in three consecutive days. This training will help build awareness and understanding of own strengths, biases, values, etc., AND will build our skill set in working with this population. The goal of this training is to view this issue by hearing the voices of those involved as a way to clarify important issues, dispel myths and misconceptions and challenge conventional views. (Gorkoff & Runner, 2003, page 12). To enrich the training experience for everyone, we will ensure that experiential persons are also included in this training; both as trainers and participants.

The curriculum content of this module has been selected to correspond with identified competencies critical for people working with individuals affected by sexual exploitation. The competencies are summarized on pages 3 and 4.

There is a $200.00 fee for all Winnipeg participants to attend the full training ($100.00 for each Part) and $150.00 for the 3-day rural training. If the cost is an issue, please contact Jane Runner at 204-786-7051 ext. 5260 or
